PROPERTY DETAILS

Wake up to aspens, go to bed with mountain views. That's the vibe here in Elk Creek Highlands. This Bailey home sits in the trees with the high country out the windows and a deck made for coffee, grilling, and watching wildlife wander through. Inside, it's easy living: vaulted ceilings, hardwood, a wood stove that actually gets used, and a kitchen that stays in the conversation. The live-edge table sits right by the sliders, so dinner comes with the same view as the grill outside. Downstairs is the fun floor. Boards on the wall, guitars on the wall, another stove, and a covered patio with a hot tub. Come in from the trail, drop the gear, soak, repeat. You're in a real mountain neighborhood—privacy, pines, and Pike National Forest close by—without disappearing from the Front Range. Bailey and Conifer are nearby. Denver is an easy run down 285. Use it full-time or as a weekend base. If this is the cabin you've been scrolling for, let's go see it. Message for a showing before someone else claims the view.
